JURY RETIRED AT 5:20 YESTERDAY AFTERNOON.

Foley Sat With His Sisters During the Arguments and Was Moved to Tenra-Great Crowd Present at the Close of the Trial.

The fate of William S. Foley, tried at Liberty for the murder of his mother, Mrs. Elizabeth S. Foley, on the night of No-yember 17, 1896, now rests with the jurous. They retired at 5:20 o'clock. No verdict has

The morning session of the court at Liberty began at 8:45 yesterday. An hour be-fore that time every seat in the court room was occupied by men and women, boys and girls. In the crowd were many of the socitty women of Liberty, both single and married. The crowd increased constantly, and by the time the judge took his place on the bench and order was called, it was im-possible to obtain standing room. At the afternoon session the crowd was equally

Those who looked for the prisoner discovered that he was not in the usual place at the long table facing the judge's bench. He had changed his seat, and was seated upon a bench just inside the railing, about fifteen feet back from where he had been ifteen foet back from where he had been altting. Beside him were his sisters, Mrs. Annie Morrow and Miss Amélia Foley. On the same bench were his brother-inlaw, J. J. Morrow, and his cousins, Dr. Dillard Ricketts, of Flatisburg, and John T. Ricketts, of Moscow, Clay county. Prosecuting Atterney W. H. Woodson read the Instructions upon behalf of the state as soon as court convened. He was followed by ex-Senator H. F. Simrall, senior counsel for the defense. Before the reading of the instructions was finished Foley began wiping fears from his eyes. His sister, Amelia, who had displayed an astonishing degree of fortitude up to that time, also shed a few tears behind her embroidered handkerchief.

The instructions were for murder in the first degree or acquittal. As the erime was premeditated, there could be no lesser punishment than hanging for the murderer, if convicted. Judge Branddus defined reasonable doubt at length. It must be such a doubt in the mind of each juror as to prevent him from arriving at the conclusion that the defendant was guilty. If the jurors regarded the circumstantial evidence introduced by the state as complete and conclusive, they should bring in a verdict of guilty.

If the jurors regarded the circumstantial evidence introduced by the state as complete and conclusive, they should bring in a verdict of guilty.

Attorney J. J. Williams, of Kansas City, made the opening speech for the state. He reviewed the evidence and called the attention of the jurors, all of whom are farmers, to the fact that murders committed upon farms are usually unavenged, because of the fact that famers live so far apart that there are no witnesses to the killings. He shayer of Mrs. Foley and her daughter with the Foley premises, and called attention to fale fact that the weapons used belonged to Foley. From the body of Mrs. Foley was taken a builet of a peculiar construction. In the revolver which Foley was carrying at the time of and after the double murder, and which he borrowed from "Bob" Williams, were three cartridges in which were the same kind of builters. Foley's own revolver, which was found in the house the night of the murder, contained exactly the same kind of rarridges like these in Liberty, Kansas City and other cities, and had not succeeded. They had brought into court cartridges simflar, but when closely examined they were found to be different. "Bob" Williams had testified that when he loaned his revolver to Foley it contained extending the murder and fifty covers will be laid and the affair will be quite an elaborate one. Some of the best speakers among the visitors and of the city will respond to toasts.

The defense had attempted to find cartridges like these in Liberty, Kansas City and other cities, and had not succeeded. They had brought into court cartridges similar, but when closely examined they were found to be different. "Bob" Williams had testified that when he loaned his revolver to Foley it contained cartridges of a recent make that are easily obtained:

Continuing, Mr. Williams called attention to the attempt of Foley to make his friends believe the murders were committed by Earl Hoover, an ex-convict, who was on a farm near Frincoton, Ill., at the time. He also referred to the trouble in the Foley home, and to the prisoner's statements that he intended to be boss of the farm and that he would tell at the proper time who killed the two women. The crime was not committed for the purpose of robbery. Foley's movements upon the fatal night were not satisfactorily explained. not committed for the purpose of robbery. Foley's movements upon the fatal night were not satisfactorily explained.

Frank H. Trimble, Senitor Simrall's law partner, followed for the defense, reviewing the case. He spoke of Foley's good character, and said his home life had been pleasant. At the conclusion of his speech the court adjourned for dinner.

Senator H. F. Simrall made the conclusion for the defense. He took up the evidence and handled it in detail. He said the state had falled to prove that Foley was at his home at the time of the commission of the crime. It could not be proven beyond a reasonable doubt that he was there are that he had killed the two women. The evidence for the defense had, he claimed, shown conclusively that Foley had not returned to his home on that fatal night until after his mother and sister were murdered.

It was incumbent upon the state to prove that the defendant was either present when his mother and sister were murdered.

It was incumbent upon the state to prove that the defendant was either present when his mother and sister were killed or had planned and conspired with some one else for their slaughter. It had not done so. He said the cartridges bought by one of the defendant's witnesses were almost the same as those that were found in Foley's revolve.

The closing speech for the state was made by Prosecuting Attorney W. H. Woodson. He declared that if the Jurors land due regard to their oath to be guided solely by the law and the evidence they could do but one thing, and that was bring in a verdict finding the defendant, William S. Foley, guilty of the crime for which he was on trial, the murder of his aged mother. He would be glad if Foley could prove his innoceance, but he could not.

At the conclusion of Prosecuting Attorney Woodson's speech the jurors retired to deliberate upon their verdict.

Looks Like a Hung Jury.

At 10 o'clock last night the jurors were taken to the home of Sheriff Hymer, in accordance with the order of Judge Broaddus. It was rumored that they had taken several ballots during the three and a half hours that they were locked up in the jury room, and that they stood seven for conviction and five for acquittal. There was no way of verifying or disproving the rumor. They will be brought to the court house again at 7 o'clock this morning, and if they do not agree by 6 o'clock this sevening they will be discharged.

"There is a great hue and cry being raised throughout the country against department stores on account of the intense competition which they offer. Some people are in favor of having them abolished, and we have all no doubt, recently observed the movement on foot in various states to restrict them by hostile legislation. Some practices of these large department stores are certainly open to criticism. For instance, they will sell goods as leaders for a specific time at or below cost, thus fixing the prices for the many other retail stores in their own and neighboring cities. This often happens in the grocery line in particular, when a department store which sells such staples as sugar, flour and coffee will dispose of them for cash at low-figures than those at which the average retailer can purchase them.

"Inquiry into this subject naturally leads to a few comments on another evil in the business world that has grown rapidly within the last few years; namely, that which is designated as fake advertising. We should all be enterprising, but when truth is trespassed upon in order to gain an advantage and the real facts misrepresented and distorted, I think it is lime that a halt should be called. A certain class of people believe everything they see in print, and I presume these advertisements are written with the object of deceiving just that class. But 'right is right,' and I am alraid if this is allowed to continue without a protest, it can only result in evil effects upon all legitimate business enterprises which appeal to the public through the medium of advertisements.

PRESIDENT'S LAST WORDS AS HEAD OF THE COLLEGE.

Ringing Resolutions of the Alumni Scoring the Pops for Making Party Fealty and Not Fitness the Test of Membership of the Faculty.

Manhattan, Kas., June 10.-(Special.) The thirtieth commencement at the Kansas state agricultural college was attended by probably the greatest crowd ever assembled at the college.

The alumni, former students and college friends were especially attracted this year because of the last opportunity to greet their old teachers, at least twelve of whom, including the president, sever their connection with the institution this year by re quest of the board of regents.

The graduating exercises were attended by all who could find a place in the large chapel, standing room even in the halls being at a premium long before the hour fixed for opening the programme. Dr. Washington Gladden, of Columbus, O., delivered a stirring address on the theme. "Present Day Problems." President Fairchild, in a few earnest, last words, conferred the degree of Bachelor of Science on the fifty-five members of the class,

The Retiring President.

It seems fitting, in connection with a report of these commencement exercises, to give brief sketches, at most, of the two men so prominently identified with the college—the old president and the new.

George Thompson Fairchild, who for eighteen years has been the guiding spirit of the Kansas State Agricultural college, is a mative of Ohio, being born at Brownheim in 1838. His father was a farmer and teacher. He was educated at Oberlin college, graduated in the classical course in 1822, in the department of theology in 1855 and, though never a pastor, was ordained to the ministry of the Congregational church.

In 1852 he was elected instructor in Michigan agricultural college, and the next year was made professor of English literature, which chair he filled until his call to the presidency of the Kansas state agricultural college, where he entered upon his work December I, 1873. His work here, to which he has devoted the best years of his life, has been of a character to command the attention of educators everywhere, and with the assistance of a board and faculty in full sympathy with his views, has given to the college first place in the rank of institutions of its kind. He is a prominent member of the National Educational Association, in which he was presented with a life directorship by the faculty of the college in 1888. He is a member of the National Council of Educations, in which he has been honored with offices many times, find of the latter of which he is now president.

in the feed lot at the time preparing to feed the stock. The bolt struck the former on his head, tearing his hat into shreds and almost stripping him of his clothing. The hired man was stunned by the shock but received no serious injuries. Twelve head of hogs, standing near, were also killed. Deceased came to Saline in 1834, and in 1882 enlisted in the Federal army, Company E, of the Seventh Missouri cavalry, at Lexington, and was conspicuous in a number of battles.

GUN WAS LOADED. Little Richard Lung Accidentally Shot by a Playmate and Badly

Wounded. Richard Lang, the 11-year-old son of A. Lang, a brick contractor living at 2221 Woodland avenue, was accidentally shot in the right side with a 32-callber rifle while at play with some boys near his home last night. The Lang boy was riding a horse belonging to Harry Carter, son of Henry belonging to Harry Carter, son of Henry Carter, a civil engineer, who lives at 2509 Highland avenue, when the Carter boy pointed a rifle at him and accidentally pressed the trigger. The boy fell from the horse and was carred to his home by his father. Drs. C. V. and E. Vletor Wedding and G. T. Johnson were summoned. The bail entered the right side, under the arm pit, but, after examining the wound, they gave up the attempt to locate it. The boy remained conscious, but suffered great pain. The physicians say that the wound will not prove fatal, at least, its immediate effects.

DOWN IN SUMNER AND COWLEY. No Lack of Judicial Timber There in Either of the Political Parties. Wellington, Kas., June 10.—(Special.) Politics in Sumner and Cowley counties is warming up unusually early this season on account of the election of a judge for this account of the election of a jouge or this judicial district. There are two avowed Republican candidates in the field; C. L. Swarts, of Arkansas City, and J. S. Dey, of Wellington, with George H. Buckland, of Wilnfield, as a dark horse.

of Wellington, with George H. Buckland, of Winfield, as a dark horse.

There are two Populist candidates—James A. Ray, of Sumner, and O. M. Fuller of Cowley. Ray was chairman of the state free silver Republican committee last year. In order to enter the race for judge he had to admit that he has been a Populist for the past year and that he was sailing under false colors while at the head of the silverlies. He left the Republican party because it would not keep him in office. The Democratic candidates are W. T. McBride, of Wellington, and J. W. O'Hare, of Winfield. The Democrats and Populists are not playing with each other this year in this district. The Democrats have set their primaries for July 29, while the Populists have fixed their primaries for August 21. The Populists propose to nominate by the Crawford county system.

CALLED EACH OTHER LIAR. Senator Hanna and Representative Jaquins Quarrel and Nearly

Come to Blows. Topeka, Kas., June 10 .- (Special.) Repre sentative Jaquins, of Cowley, author of the new stock yards bill, and Senator Hanna, new stock yards bill, and Senator Hanna, of Clay county, had a set-to in the attorney general's office to-day, and things looked squally for awhile. The trouble arose over stock yards legislation. Jaquins accused Hanna of being employed by the stock yards company during the legislature and attempting to defeat legislation. Hanna accused Jaquins of being in the employ of the Kansas City packing houses to fight his anti-oleo bill. Each called the other a Har, and coats were drawn, but friends interfered and bloodshed was averted.

A short time ago I piaced myself under the care of the Munyon specialists, and began taking the Munyon remedies. At that time I suffered a great deal of pain in different parts of my body, and a most distressing backache, but to-day, although I have been using the remedies but a short time, I can testify to a complete cure. I am indeed a happy woman, as I fully expected to die, my complications were of so deeply-seated a character. I am recommending Munyon's remedies to everybody."

AMERICAN BOOK COMPANY WRITES AN INTERESTING LETTER.

Believes the Kansas School Book Law Will Prove Unsatisfactory to Both the People and the Publishers.

Topeka, Kas., June 19.—(Special.) The American Book Company has written State

Superintendent Stryker a letter, giving its reasons for fallure to put in a bid for supreasons for failure to put in a bid for supplying books to the schools of Kansas. After telling of its first intention to put a good quality of literature in a cheap book the letter continues:

"We experimented by manufacturing samples of these books and ascertaining their cost, with a view, if possible, of bidding them and thus meeting the requirement of your law. Having given the matter thorough and careful consideration, we have reluctantly concluded that we cannot afford to hid even this series of books. The exceedingly low prices which your law has fixed, the very much lower prices of exchange and the long and differing periods of exchange privilege and the system of supply set up, making it necessary to keep on sale at commission in each of your 195 counties a stock of the adopted books, with pre-payment of freight, etc. the risk of having left on hand a large, scattered, shop worn stock at the termination of the contrast, render our acceptance of such terms impossible. Even were a full line of adoptions tendered to any one publisher, we do not believe he could afford to accept it, much less could he afford to accept it, much less could be a certain class of books under the terms of your law, we believe the result will be a disappointment both to your people and to the bidder." plying books to the schools of Kansas.

disappointment both to your people and to the bidder." Teaching Republican Politics.

Austin, Tex., June 19.—After a wrangle lasting over three hours, the house of the legislature to-day adopted a resolution to have a committee appointed to investigate the charge that there were Northern professors occupying chairs in the Texas state university who were teaching Republican politics and ridiculing the history of the Lost Cause.

River Brethren's Love Feast.

Abilene, Kas., June 10.—(Special.) The annual ceremony of feet washing was observed to-day at the River Brethren's love feast at Belle Springs, twelve miles south of this city. Several hundred members of this Quakerlike sect gathered from all parts of the county, and sermons were delivered by Bishops Zook and Engle. Lumberman Commits Sufeide.

St. Paul, June 18.—Philip Reilly, president of the John Martin Lumber Company and vice president of the St. Paul National bank, committed suicide to-day by shooting. No reason is known except continued iil health. Missourian Dies in California.

Yosemite, Cal., June 10.—A. R. Glasscock, proprietor of the Sentinel hotel, who was stricken with apoplexy Sunday morning, died last night. He was a native of Missouri and 54 years of age. He will be buried here to-day. Judge Fitzgerald Sinking Rapidly. St. Mary's. Kas., June 10.—(Special.) Judge W.
